

A massive thanks go to the following artists who supported the EAW from the start and are actively making and creating. The Art window may be gone but please continue to seek them out and follow them to see what they are up to next.

It was always going to be a challenge to show the enormous heavy metal sculptures of Peter Shrimpton in the window! But we did show some of his smaller creations. Peter made the metal sign above the door. Follow Peter on Insta @industrialsculpture on FB @Industrial Sculpture and on his website www.isandd.co.uk

From the start of the Eynsham Art Window, Matt Black showed his soulful, dreamlike and sometimes melancholy experimental works. Follow Matt on Insta @thecoloursofblack and visit his website www.thecoloursofblack.com

Emma Hallmark brought her small, bright and charming paintings, expressing her love of the great outdoors - and especially wild swimming! Follow Emma on Insta @emmahallmarkartist and her website

In every window we featured the masterful works of much-loved Eynsham artist Eric White, whose skill with pastels constantly amazed and delighted us. Follow Eric on Insta @ericwhite5599.

Alice Walker's panoramic and diverse range of styles in all mediums and sizes, were always a thrill to see. Check out her website: alice@alicewalkerart.co.uk, or follow her on Insta @alicewalkerart. It's Alice who will be taking over 66 Mill Street - look out for what comes next!!!!

Lorna Marrison's paintings and drawings are rooted to Eynsham. We loved showing her work which closely examines the details in the village, as well as its beating heart - the Morris side! Follow Lorna on Insta @lornamarrison, on FB @LornaMarrisonartist and check out her website: lornamarrisonartist.co.uk

Sheila Raven's unique jewellery is inspired by her career in archaeology, her love of the natural world and a passion for a greener planet. Very wearable as daily pieces, you will love her brooches and rings. You may feel yourself slip back in time and closer to the earth and nature. Follow Sheila on her etsy site. Julie Sailing-Free's immensely joyful and distinctive palette is clear in every single painting she showed in the Eynsham Art Window. Her talent for zingy colours is especially clear when she paints flowers - in a way only she can! Follow Julie on Insta @juliesailingfree and on FB @JSailingFreeArt&Design.

We just loved everything, Kevin Hinton brought to the window. You'll remember his illustrations of everyday things, as well as his drawings and paintings, which combined clarity of vision and graphical talent with imaginative humour. Follow Kev on Insta @planetkev and check out his website @www.planetkev.co.uk

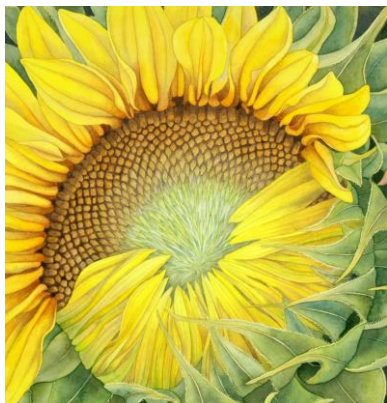

Ali Berrett's paintings have such vital energy! With her distinctive palette and mark-making, she expressed the feelings of landscapes in gestural abstraction. Check out her website at www.alisonberrettartist.com and follow her on Insta @alisonberrettartist and FB @ArtistAliB

We were always thrilled to show the breathtakingly intricate botanical watercolours of Julia Loken. Julia isn't on social media, but you can see her paintings on her website: www.loken.co.uk. She can be contacted by email julia@loken.co.uk Julia painted the sunflower that formed part of our logo.

We very much enjoyed showing Paul Tomlinson's ink and wash drawings of townscapes - including loads of Eynsham! Paul draws from life, so perhaps you saw him around the village sitting sketching a street scene? Follow Paul on Insta @paul_r_tomlinson and FB @artofpaultomlinson. Thanks to Paul for helping hang new displays when his sister Jane was not able to!

We're certain you loved seeing Jane Tomlinson's vibrant paintings of the natural world - and all those astonishing hand-painted maps! Thank you to Jane who helped to hang the window displays time after time. Follow her on FB @artofjanetomlinson, on Insta @janeytom, on Twitter @JaneSunflower, and check out her website: www.janetomlinson.com

The Eynsham Art Window was conceived, created, managed and curated by ceramic artist Alison Holmans. Alison showed us a huge variety of pottery that was functional, creative, and decorative in stoneware and raku. It's just amazing what you can make from mud!

THANK YOU Alison for being the brains and energy behind the Eynsham Art Window! Follow Alison on Insta @chickenrunstudio and FB The Chicken Run Studio and have a look at her website: www.chickenrunstudio.co.uk

It is not the end of ART at 66 Mill Street . . . The village will be pleased to hear that Alice Walker is taking over the building as her art studio and to run her art classes.

Alice Walker @alicewalkerart is an incredibly versatile artist of many talents. I am sure there will be a lot to see in the window and her students and colleagues will be able to go inside and get creative. It is an exciting progression.
